

Implementation of the National Clinical Trials Governance Framework

The National Clinical Trials Governance Framework, implemented under the Australian Commission on Safety and Quality in Health Care (the Commission) in May 2023, is a significant and positive national reform for the delivery of healthcare in Australia.

The National Clinical Trial Governance Framework (NCTGF) outlines the actions that are vital for the attainment of integrated corporate and clinical governance systems for clinical research service delivery by health service organisations. This framework supports the integration of clinical trial service provision into routine care to achieve improved patient outcomes.

GenesisCare endorses and will adopt the National Clinical Trials Governance Framework as an embedded approach to our service provision as we consider clinical research to be part of core health service business under the Australian Health Service Safety and Quality Accreditation (AHSSQA) Scheme.
